GLOSSARY:

Amaro: A bitter-sweet Italian herbal liqueur, drunk as a digestif.

Chartreuse: a product made by Carthusian monks in France by macerating roughly 130 different herbs and spices in wine spirit.

Claret syrup: simply a red wine syrup.

Crude reduction : a syrup made with dark ale, raisins, sugar & spices

Grenadine: a syrup made from pomegranates.

Kummel: a liqueur predominantly flavoured with caraway & fennel seeds.

Mezcal: similar to tequila, a spirit made from the agave plant outside of the tequila region of Mexico. Generally smokier and rawer than its more refined cousin.

Oleo Saccharum: literally translates as “sugary oil”, this is a syrup, made with a combination of essential oils from citrus fruit and sugar.

Orgeat: a sweet syrup made with almonds and sugar.

Pearls: fruit purees which we have made, which are then encapsulated in a very thin jello membrane.

Rotovapple syrup: a syrup made by putting organic apple juice through our vacuum distillation apparatus (a.k.a the rotovap). citric acid and sugar are then added to the product of this process; apple scented water, to mimic the key flavour components of an apple.

Steel-aged: ingredients blended and left to marry in steel vats to create one cohesive, complex flavour. (see: lasagne always tastes better the next day).

Suze: a bitter French aperitif, with strong gentian influence

Whey syrup: a syrup made from whey (whey is the remaining clear liquid after the curds have been strained from milk).
