

Scripts for Supper present a retelling of William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. A theatrical dining experience by Annie Mckenzie.

Cocktail

'Blood & Honey, a smuggler's delight'
Mead, gin, blood orange, campari

Canapes

'He hath eaten me out of house and home'
Cauliflower veloute with truffle oil, beef cheek croquette with horseradish mayo, cockle popcorn

Amuse Bouche

'He smells like a fish, a very ancient and fish-like smell'
Pie of shrimps

Starter

'I had rather live with cheese...'
Cheshire cheese on toast

Main

'His wit's as thick as Tewkesbury mustard'
Pork tenderloin, mash potato, caramelised shallot, roasted carrots, cider and mustard sauce

Choice of Yearlstone Red or White Wine, or Homebrewed Ale

Dessert

'Dost thou think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale?'
Lemon posset, rosewater jelly, shortbread, chantilly cream, edible flowers, crystallised rose petals

Digestif

'Give me a bowl of wine'
Port

