

Winter Afternoon Tea

Inspired by Avercamp's A Winter Scene with Skaters near a Castle, about 1608-9

Our Winter Afternoon Tea is inspired by Hendrick Avercamp's
A Winters Scene with Skaters Near a Castle, about 1608-9.

Seventeenth-century Dutch winters were notorious for their Arctic cold and Avercamp led the way in making pictures of 'life on the ice'.

Our selection includes scones, finger sandwiches, and seasonal pastries and cakes - a tartlet with a white chocolate dome, Dutch butter cake, and chocolate tree garnishes. The painting is on display in the National Gallery.
